Welcome

We invite you to join us as the WSU Center for Combating Human Trafficking (CCHT) recognizes National Human Trafficking Awareness Month by hosting our fourth annual Collaborative Multidisciplinary Anti-Trafficking Response Conference – Breaking Down Barriers: Understanding the Complexity of Human Trafficking.

With our Lotus Anti-Trafficking Response Model™ in mind, we have designed this conference in a manner that intentionally engages multidisciplinary professionals, civic and faith leaders, and interested community members in anti-trafficking efforts. We hope that our conference is a place where you feel inspired to dig deep and closely examine the issues that are holding back forward progress in our state and across the country. Serving and walking alongside individuals who are at-risk of or subjected to abuse, exploitation, and trafficking requires all of us to be equipped in body, mind, heart, and soul. We believe that we can not do it alone. Thus, through creating a context in which deliberate networking, collaboration, and the sharing of expertise can occur, our ability to more purposefully and effectively address trafficking will be enhanced.

Like past years, we will move beyond talk of “rescue” and “HT 101,” to discussing how we can work to create intentional, long-lasting change among those who are at-risk of or subjugated to labor and sex trafficking. We will be challenged to examine the pressing issues in the anti-trafficking movement, from criminalization to long-term prosperity responses. To achieve this goal, we have brought together a diverse group of experts in the field of human trafficking who will cover a variety of topics in our breakout sessions.

Additionally, we are honored to welcome two nationally renowned keynotes: Judge Catherine Pratt and Judge Robert Lung. While both are judges, they each bring a unique perspective and approach to this issue. Judge Pratt was appointed as a commissioner in the Los Angeles Superior Court in 2006 and became a judge in 2016. She has been assigned to the juvenile delinquency court since July 2007 and in January 2012 began supervising the STAR Court, collaborative, victim-centered court that provides services to juveniles who have been commercially sexually exploited and are on probation for prostitution or related charges. Judge Lung has served on the bench for over 15 years in the 18th Judicial District of Colorado and he currently presides over a criminal/juvenile/domestic docket. In addition to his responsibilities as a judicial officer, Judge Lung provides presentations nationally on the subjects of human trafficking, childhood trauma, recovery and resiliency. I am proud to call both of them FRIENDS AND ALLIES.

Indeed, this will be a conference that challenges you to think deeply about human trafficking and your role in not only combating abuse, exploitation, and human trafficking; but promoting holistic prosperity among those who are vulnerable and marginalized. Don’t miss this opportunity to enhance your professional growth and network with multidisciplinary colleagues, partners, allies, and friends in the anti-trafficking movement.

Conference Objectives

1. Learn the complexities to addressing human trafficking including the connection to a larger social justice movement.
2. Identify and develop an understanding of organizations and agencies in Kansas and across the United States serving victims/survivors of human trafficking.
3. Develop an understanding of the unique and varying roles of multidisciplinary professionals involved in the care of victims/survivors of human trafficking.
4. Increase understanding of the continuum of care necessary to provide holistic services for victims and survivors of human trafficking.
5. Develop an understanding of prevention, identification, intervention, and multidisciplinary/multi-dimensional after-care (e.g. prosperity promoting) services currently implemented in Kansas and across the United States.
6. Explore opportunities to increase the capacity for multidisciplinary professionals to more effectively prevent and/or intervene in cases of human trafficking.
7. Explore systemic societal risk factors that create the context in which human trafficking occurs.
8. Explore and develop long-term solutions that will equate to greater efficacy in the anti-trafficking movement.
9. Develop an understanding for the importance of aftercare services for survivors of human trafficking.
10. Explore and develop more adaptive salutation that will address systemic challenges and equate to greater efficacy in the anti-trafficking movement.

Los Angeles Judge Catherine Pratt has handled juvenile delinquency cases in Compton, CA, since 2007.

In 2011, in conjunction with efforts by the Los Angeles Probation Dept., she created and implemented STAR Court, a collaborative court to work with commercially sexually exploited children (CSEC). Since then, she has worked with over 400 CSEC youth on probation. Preliminary data shows that these youth are spending less time in custody, have higher graduation rates and the vast majority have not have not been re-arrested for prostitution, either as a juvenile or an adult.

Pratt now provides training for judges and other professionals throughout the country on how to work with CSEC children. In 2015 and 2016, she consulted with the Obama administration and the Office of Juvenile Justice Delinquency Prevention on creating trauma and gender informed court environments.

Prior to being on the bench, Pratt represented the L.A. Department of Children and Family Services in dependency cases and in several federal class actions concerning the adequacy of services for foster children, including the Katie A. litigation. Early in her legal career, she handled civil business disputes, often representing Wall Street financial firms.

She attended law school at U.S.C. and undergraduate at U.C. Berkeley. She was born and raised in Southern California.

Judge Lung has served on the bench for over 15 years in the 18th Judicial District of Colorado and he currently presides over a criminal/juvenile/domestic docket. In addition to his responsibilities as a judicial officer, Judge Lung provides presentations nationally on the subjects of human trafficking, childhood trauma, recovery and resiliency.

In 2016 Judge Lung was appointed to serve as the Judicial Representative on the Colorado Human Trafficking Council and in 2017 he was selected to serve on the National Advisory Committee on the Sex Trafficking of Children and Youth in the United States.

Judge Lung also serves as a consultant to the Office for Victims of Crime (OVC), a division of the Department of Justice and the Office of Trafficking in Persons of the Federal Department of Health and Human Services. In his “free time” Judge Lung enjoys trying to keep up with his kids with downhill mountain biking, dirt biking and hiking.
Check-in, Breakfast and Visit Exhibits

Welcome and Opening Remarks
Karen Countryman-Roswurm, PhD, Executive Director, Center for Combating Human Trafficking, Wichita State University

Keynote Presentation:
How Sex Trafficking Victims Challenge us to Be a Better (insert your profession here)
In her work with sexually exploited youth in juvenile justice, Judge Pratt has learned many lessons about and from child sex trafficking victims. Although national awareness of the issue has grown exponentially in the last five years, all system involved professionals can improve the communication with and support for these victims.
Judge Catherine Pratt, JD, Judge, The Superior Court of California, County of Los Angeles

Break and Visit Exhibits

Breakout Session #1

1.1 Human Trafficking and the Court System
Join Judge Pratt for a more in-depth look at the work being done in Los Angeles in the STAR Court, a collaborative, victim-centered court that provides services to juveniles who have been commercially sexually exploited and are on probation for prostitution or related charges.
Presenter: Judge Catherine Pratt, JD, Judge, The Superior Court of California, County of Los Angeles

1.2 Recognizing Human Trafficking for Health Care Workers
Health care workers are in a unique position to identify, intervene and provide safety for victims of human trafficking. In this presentation you will learn about what a human trafficking victim looks like in the health care setting; with real life examples of children we have treated, the common emotional and physical signs and symptoms that a victim will present in the health care setting, how to intervene for trafficking victims, ways that healthcare workers can start their own anti-trafficking initiatives and innovative ways to partner with non-profit and government resources.
Presenter: Heidi Olson, RN, BSN, CPN, Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner Program Coordinator, Children’s Mercy Hospital

Human Trafficking and Domestic Violence Intersections and Deviations: Adapting Services Effectively
This panel presentation explores the intersections of Human Trafficking and Domestic Violence, and provides first-hand insights for adjustments needed for providing services effectively to both populations. Panel members are experienced shelter directors and other experts. While human trafficking and domestic violence are unique forms of violence, trafficking is sometimes a part of the domestic violence victims’ experience, and vice versa. The similarities and differences between these two crimes and how we can apply our knowledge about domestic violence to human trafficking will be examined. The different motives of those who batter, and connections with suppliers (pimps) and buyers (johns) will also be explored to better understand the victim’s experience.
Presenters: Dorthy Stucky Halley, LMSW, Director of Victim Services Division, Office of the Attorney General; Joan Schultz, BA, Director, Business Development, Family Peace Initiative; Former Executive Director, The Willow DV Center; Michelle McCormick, LMSW, Program Director, Center for Safety and Empowerment, YWCA NE Kansas; Sharon Sullivan, PhD, Chairperson, Women’s Studies and Theatre, Washburn University

1.3 Human Trafficking and Domestic Violence Intersections and Deviations: Adapting Services Effectively

1.4 Fashion and the Fight against Human Trafficking
It touches each of us every day. Fashion is an estimated $2.4 trillion industry with fragmented accountability and complex supply chains. Globalization has created economic opportunities in developing nations while the lack of fair wages; the never ending demand for cheap clothing; and shortened fashion cycles results in labor vulnerabilities. Without attentive consideration, the clothing we wear may be part of the cause behind sweat shop and trafficking atrocities. Learn how trafficking and fashion are intertwined; how ethical fashion prevents vulnerabilities; and how to shop ethically.
Presenter: Dawn Manske, MEd, MATS, Founder/CEO, Made for Freedom

Breakout Session #2

2.1 The Gut Reaction: How to Feel and What to Do in Practice
This session addresses our ongoing work on addressing Human Trafficking in our medical clinic. Changes in clinical practice and awareness of human trafficking in our area will be discussed. As well as how we envision this work as continuing to grow. Skills we teach to our medical team to work with trauma patients will be explored. Finally, strategies in increasing external and internal collaboration and team based care will be discussed.

Presenters: Anna Rempel, MD, Resident Physician-Family Medicine, Smoky Hill Family Medicine Residency/Salina Family Healthcare; Danielle Blea, LCMFT, LCAC, Behavioral Health Faculty, Smoky Hill Family Medicine Residency/Salina Family Healthcare

2.2 Misery of Disaster: Spiking Girl Trafficking in Nepal after the Great Earthquake
This session will share current trafficking scenarios in Nepal with critical analysis from the socio-economic perspective on how a natural disaster has contributed to the significant rising trend of women and girls trafficking to Indian brothels and the middle-east. This session will also share the experience of rescued girls in visual form who are currently living in the safe-haven of 3 Angels Nepal after the disaster. The presentation will conclude with a debate on critical points in the perspective of a social worker on how the government could have addressed the issue.

Presenters: Anurag Aswal, MD, Resident Physician-Family Medicine, Smoky Hill Family Medicine Residency/Salina Family Healthcare; Russell Tuttle, LMSW, AwareKC Certified, Ordained Minister, President and Founder, The Stop Trafficking Project

2.3 An examination of Strategies to Bring Awareness to Human Trafficking in One’s Community
During this session participants will gain an understanding of how to facilitate and gather data in one’s local community to determine the appropriate next steps to empower community members to gain awareness and education to prevent human trafficking. Participants will be trained in how to utilize research tools to collect data from community members. In addition, individuals will gain knowledge of what participatory action research is and how to implement the process in one’s community.

Presenter: Lara Vanderhoof, DSW, LMSW, Assistant Professor of Social Work, Tabor College

2.4 Technology is Complex But Technology is Not the Enemy
Technology continually increases the complexities of sex trafficking. However, technology is not the enemy. Criminals utilize technology to create an advantage for themselves. Most of the technologies used by sex sellers, sex buyers, and victims or those in the grooming process, have legitimate and legal functions. We must keep up. For those combating sex trafficking, it’s crucial to recognize the complexities technology can create, be educated about the potential impact of improperly used technology, and be empowered to use technology for good. So, bring your smart phone and take selfies!

Presenter: Russ Tuttle, BA, AwareKC Certified, Ordained Minister, President and Founder, The Stop Trafficking Project

Break and Visit Exhibits

Breakout Session #3

3.1 Beyond Definitions: Using Stages of Change and Motivational Interviewing to Engage Victims/Survivors
Meaningful engagement is key for successful outcomes—this is why we must strive to implement effective practices in our programming. Stages of Change and Motivational Interviewing work in tandem to assess a person’s readiness for change and evoke internal motivation. Motivational
Interviewing is an evidence based practice that can be utilized in all programs. This session provides information that is designed to help participants leave with knowledge and skills that can be implemented in programming at the completion of this workshop.

Presenters: Risa Rehmert, BHS, Director of Program Development, WSU Center for Combating Human Trafficking; Allison Farres, LMSW, MPH, Strategic Programming and Evaluation Specialist, WSU Center for Combating Human Trafficking

3.2 Risk, Need and Responsivity Model and CASA

When a child is victimized, we begin the process of protecting the child from abuse. For a child to thrive from victimization, it takes a strategic cross-sector community based intervention. Learn how the Risk, Need and Responsivity model is critical in helping children in foster care not only survive abuse, but thrive under dire circumstances. CASA will discuss statistical data and trends in victims who reside in foster care, the evidence based Risk, Need and Responsivity model to target for positive change among foster children, how the CASA model facilitates the cross-sector community based support, and discuss the difference of short term legal protection and long term community support.

Presenter: Ashley Thorne, MSCJ, Executive Director, CASA of Sedgwick County

3.3 Navigating Legal Systems with Survivors of Human Trafficking

This session will outline some of the options and legal services available to survivors and how these options can apply in a practical way to benefit them. Navigating both the criminal and civil legal systems can be challenging for survivors and their advocates. The criminal legal system has undergone significant change over the past decade, and certain limited legal remedies are available to survivors if they know how to access these options. Survivors of human trafficking often have legal needs that go beyond the criminal legal system, as a direct result of the victimization and exploitation.

Presenter: Sara Zafar, JD, Attorney, Kansas Legal Services

3.4 Hope on the Horizon

Sexual abuse, foster care, and a lack of understanding on the dynamics of human trafficking are the premises for this session. A journey into the past of the presenter and other true stories help the audience connect real-life situations with human trafficking data and create a clear picture of what human trafficking looks like here in the United States. Long-term holistic approaches to early childhood trauma are the best way to arrest the damage on the developing brain, restore primary function, provide opportunity for a better future, and prevent human trafficking.

Presenter: Amy Rouleau, BSW, MPA, Executive Director, Restoration Place

3:25 - 3:45 P.M.

Break and Visit Exhibits

3:45 - 4:45 P.M.

Keynote Presentation:

Sex Trafficking, Sexism and One Survivor's Insight

In this presentation the audience will start with a brief interlude in secondary trauma, self-care and the ‘basics’ of sex trafficking before delving into the dirty details of juvenile sex trafficking in the U.S. which includes certain victim populations that are overlooked or outright ignored by the mass media and even victim service providers. The presenter will also discuss a case study of severe trauma that included abuse, trafficking and torture. Lastly, the audience will learn about effective treatments, alternative court interventions and what the speaker regards as ‘Evidence-based Hope.’

Hon. Robert Lung, JD, 18th Judicial District of Colorado

Note: This presentation includes discussion of sensitive information, is not appropriate for minors and is an interactive presentation as the audience will participate in grounding techniques to address secondary trauma.

5:00 P.M.
