We invite your participation as the Center for Combating Human Trafficking (CCHT) recognizes National Human Trafficking Awareness Month. In 2020, we aim to spark conversation and action with our campaign:

Be the Bombshell. Ignite Your Power.

We’re doing things a bit differently this year.

Through conversation, we will explore the ways in which we all play a role in facilitating various forms of abuse, exploitation, and trafficking. We want to challenge our communities to act: to challenge mechanisms of silence, to speak out against even the smallest forms of abuse, and to engage in sacrificial love and advocacy when needed.

As part of this action campaign, we are offering two opportunities to join in the conversation. First, we will host a screening of the movie Bombshell. This film details the allegations of sexual harassment at Fox News that made headlines in 2016. The screening is co-hosted with mamafilm and will include a discussion about the connections between all forms of abuse. Participants will discuss ways we, as ordinary citizens, can help create a safer community.

We conclude Human Trafficking Awareness Month with our Sixth Annual Collaborative Multidisciplinary Anti-Trafficking Response Conference – Context Matters: Confronting a Culture of Exploitation

Like past years, the conference will go beyond talk of “rescue” and “Human Trafficking 101,” to discussing how we all can work to create intentional, long-lasting change among those who are at-risk of or subjugated to labor and sex trafficking and other types of violence. We are intentionally broadening the focus this year to provide attendees with an understanding of the various “-isms” and cultural contributions that create opportunity for abuse, exploitation, and trafficking to occur. We will be challenged to examine the contexts in which we operate and to stand up to toxic culture. We have brought together a diverse group of experts in various fields who stood up to abuse, power, and privilege in their own lives and workplaces.

Offering General Session talks are Marisa Kwiatkowski, Investigative Reporter with USA Today and Daniel Dye, Assistant Chief Deputy Attorney General from Pennsylvania. Marisa and Daniel have investigated major cases of sex crimes, sex abuse, and cover-ups. They will share their journeys of investigation and what they learned from these cases that garnered national attention.

We are thrilled to welcome Gretchen Carlson and Rafael Bautista to Wichita. To compliment the perspectives of Marisa and Daniel, Gretchen offers a personal perspective of navigating and challenging systems of abuse and silence in a moderated Q&A. Rafael will broaden the conversation more and challenge us to think about the ways in which culture can create vulnerabilities to trafficking. We are so thankful for our keynotes and all of our speakers—this year is bound to be the best yet!

We hope you can join us for these events and that they leave you feeling challenged, yet re-energized to claim your role in creating a safe community for all, particularly those most marginalized.
GRETCHEN CARLSON

Journalist, author, TED talk alum, and advocate Gretchen Carlson helped pave the way for #MeToo with her historic 2016 sexual harassment complaint against the chairman of Fox News Roger Ailes. Named one of Time Magazine’s “100 Most Influential People in the World,” and author of New York Times bestsellers “Be Fierce” and “Getting Real,” Carlson is one of America’s most successful news anchors and a globally recognized advocate for women’s empowerment.

Carlson previously hosted “The Real Story” on Fox News, and co-hosted the number-one rated cable morning news show, “Fox and Friends,” for more than seven years. Carlson’s announced her return to television in 2018, as host and producer of A+E and Lifetime Network documentaries and recently announced a TV deal with Blumhouse Productions in which she will produce and host a new interview series.

Carlson started her television career as a political reporter in Richmond, Virginia, and then served as an anchor and reporter in Cincinnati, Cleveland, and Dallas. In 2000 Carlson moved to national news as co-host and correspondent on CBS’ “The Saturday Early Show,” where she covered some of the world’s biggest stories, including the 9-11 terrorist attack from the World Trade Center, the Bush-Gore election, and Oklahoma City Bomber Tim McVeigh’s execution. She also reported and produced a 30-part series on domestic violence that won several national awards.

In 2016 Carlson became the face of workplace harassment survivors, gracing the covers of Time and Good Housekeeping magazines, and since then she has worked fearlessly to change laws that protect predators. In December 2017, she joined a bi-partisan coalition of legislators to introduce the “Ending Forced Arbitration of Sexual Harassment Act,” which voids forced arbitration agreements that prevent sexual harassment survivors from getting their day in court. The bill was reintroduced in the House in February 2019 and Carlson testified before the House Judiciary Committee in May 2019.

In December 2019, Carlson announced a new non-profit initiative “Lift Our Voices” to eradicate confidentiality agreements (NDAs) that muzzle women facing harassment in the workplace, and so far has been successful in getting several Presidential candidates to support her initiative.

Profits from Carlson’s books go to her Gift of Courage Fund, which supports organizations empowering women and young girls. The past two years, the fund has provided free workshops to low-income women facing gender-based discrimination and violence through the Gretchen Carlson Leadership Initiative.

Carlson’s advocacy has been honored by numerous organizations, including the New York Women in Communications’ Matrix Award; the Radio Television Digital News Association’s First Amendment Leadership Award; the National Organization for Women’s 2018 Women of Power and Influence Award; and the YWCA Greater Los Angeles’ 2018 Phenomenal Champion of Change.

An honors graduate of Stanford University, Carlson was valedictorian of her high school class and also studied at Oxford University in England. A violin prodigy, she performed as a soloist with the Minnesota Orchestra at age 13, and in 1989 became the first classical violinist to win the Miss America crown. Carlson also serves as a national Trustee for the March of Dimes and as a Trustee of Greenwich Academy, an all-girls preparatory day school.

Carlson is married to sports agent Casey Close. The couple lives in Connecticut with their two teenage children.

RAFAEL BAUTISTA

PARALEGAL/Legal Assistant, The Law Office of Steven H. Berniker, APC.

Rafael Bautista is an Expert Consultant for OVCTTAC, the Office for Victims of Crime Training and Technical Assistance Center and NHTTAC, National Human Trafficking Training and Technical Assistance Center. His expertise and real-life experience has helped different organizations across the country in creating training programs, strategies, videos, and outreach material for human trafficking awareness.

Graduated from the Human Trafficking Leadership Academy, Mr. Bautista has participated in various panels and plenary sessions across the country like Washington, DC, Atlanta, GA, Los Angeles, CA, Reno, NV, Chicago, IL and in his local area, Sacramento, CA. Mr. Bautista participated in the event, “Handling Human Trafficking Cases” with the Judicial Council of California.

A member of the National Survivor Network, Mr. Bautista has testified in support of bills that provide better services for survivors of human trafficking. He assisted Humanity United on the development of Pathways to Freedom; the Department of Homeland Security with their Blue Campaign- the Department’s human trafficking awareness and education programs.

Rafael Bautista is currently a paralegal for a Law Office community. Mr. Bautista has shared his skills and expertise with his fellow advocates and his fellow survivors, believing that any and all survivors can be restored in a positive way, with the proper support.
SPEAKERS

DANIEL DYE
ESQ., ASSISTANT CHIEF DEPUTY ATTORNEY GENERAL

Daniel J. Dye, Esq. is the Assistant Chief Deputy Attorney General in the Criminal Prosecutions Section of the Pennsylvania Office of Attorney General.

Dan joined the Attorney General’s Office in 2012. Dan led the groundbreaking five year grand jury investigations into child sexual abuse and cover-up in the Roman Catholic Church in Pennsylvania which uncovered over 350 predatory priests and thousands of child abuse victims. He has continued to prosecute an active caseload of corruption, sex crimes, child abuse, and homicides. In 2015 he convicted a former Philadelphia Common Pleas Judge of public corruption crimes while in office, and in 2018 won a conviction for murder in one of Pennsylvania’s most notorious cold cases.

In addition, Dan is the Director of the Attorney General’s Medical and Legal Advisory Board on Child Abuse, which provides advisory expert analysis to local investigators in difficult to solve child abuse or child homicide investigations. In 2018, Dan was recognized by the Pennsylvania Bar Association as the Government Lawyer of the Year and by the Pennsylvania Family Support Alliance as a Blue Ribbon Champion for Kids.

MARISA KWIAKTOWSKI
MBA, INVESTIGATIVE REPORTER, USA TODAY

Marisa Kwiatkowski is an investigative reporter for USA TODAY. She handles investigations relating to social services and welfare issues, including child abuse and neglect, poverty, elder abuse, human trafficking, domestic violence and access to mental health services. Marisa has earned more than 50 journalism awards, including the Louis M. Lyons Award for Conscience and Integrity in Journalism, IRE’s Tom Renner Award, a Sigma Delta Chi Award in public service, the Casey Medal for Meritorious Journalism, the Will Rogers Humanitarian Award and Indiana Journalist of the Year. REDEFINING SUCCESS FOR SURVIVORS

Over the last 20 years, trafficking awareness has mobilized multidisciplinary professionals and community members to respond to survivors. While intentions are well-meaning, what often occurs is the application of a “one size fits all” approach. When survivors don’t fit into the system, they can be viewed as difficult or not ready for change. This session will illuminate the needs and methods for meeting survivors where they are and for developing individualized responses, driven by the survivors themselves.

Rafael Bautista, Paralegal/Legal Assistant, The Law Office of Steven H. Berniker, APC

Concurrent Breakout Sessions

1.1 COMPLICATING THE RISKS: UNACCOMPANIED CHILDREN, HUMAN TRAFFICKING AND IMMIGRATION ENFORCEMENT

Unaccompanied children immigrating from Central America has been a regular flashpoint in the media for the last five years. In 2019, a record number of unaccompanied children were apprehended and placed in federal custody, and the increased immigration enforcement has placed them at greater risk of being trafficked and exploited. Participants will learn about the journey of unaccompanied children, the relevant laws that impact them, and their vulnerabilities for being trafficked for labor or commercial sex purposes. Participants will improve their ability to serve this population by understanding their needs and the available resources for them.

Matt Haygood, LICSW, Associate Director, Children’s Services, US Committee for Refugees and Immigrants

1.2 MAXIMIZING THE INVOLVEMENT OF SURVIVORS OF TRAFFICKING: A BEST PRACTICES MODEL FOR PREVENTION, HARM REDUCTION, HEALTH CARE, SOCIAL SERVICES, AND COMMUNITY, NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL POLICY

Presenters will spend 30 minutes presenting the Maximizing Involvement of Survivors of Trafficking (MIST) model and recommendations to the audience. Participants will then form small groups for 45 minutes. Each group will be presented with a practice or policy issue around human trafficking, with each member of the group assigned a different survivor demographic (race, ethnicity, LGBTQIA2+, immigration status, HIV+, etc.) The group must come up with a practice or policy focus that is as inclusive of all the demographics represented within their group as possible. Each group must explain what perspectives, needs and obstacles were discussed in coming up with their answer. Participants will also be encouraged to share if the demographic assigned to them impacted their personal worldview of inclusion. Following the small group activity, the presenters will use the final 15 minutes to wrap up and respond to questions from participants.

Samantha Floyd, MSSW, Public Relations/Communication Chair, National Survivor Network

Leslie King, Founder & CEO, Sacred Beginnings

1.3 SHIFTING CRIMINAL JUSTICE CULTURE: REDEFINING THE ROLE OF INVESTIGATIONS & PROSECUTION IN ENDING HUMAN TRAFFICKING

This seminar explores how the criminal justice system must reframe how it looks at human trafficking to serve the needs of victims and hold offenders accountable. In order to better identify human trafficking and assist survivors of this crime, a paradigm shift in criminal justice culture is required. This shift begins with recognizing the importance of language, redefining roles, building sustainable relationships, embracing non-traditional partnerships, and successfully navigating conflict. This training will be presented from a multidisciplinary task force perspective, utilizing real-life scenarios and a case analysis.

Elise Reifschneider, MA, Human Trafficking Director, Denver District Attorney’s Office
Lara Mullin, JD, Senior Deputy District Attorney, Denver District Attorney’s Office
Adam Bechthold, BS, Senior Criminal Investigator, Human Trafficking Unit, Denver District Attorney’s Office

1.4 ENHANCING OUR INTENTIONALITY: UNDERSTANDING AND IMPLEMENTING CULTURAL HUMILITY AND TRAUMA-INFORMED CARE

Do you serve foreign-born survivors? Do you want new approaches to realize better outcomes? In the work we do it’s easy to be bogged down by everyday challenges of ensuring needs are met and challenges are overcome. In this session, we take a step back for a moment to think critically about our role in relation to those we serve. We will explore links between cultural humility and trauma-informed care to better inform program design and services. Through a mix of presentation, discussion, and activities, participants will practice being more intentional in their work with survivors.

Cecily Cook, MA, Program Officer - Trafficking Victim Assistance Program, US Committee for Refugees and Immigrants

1.5 ANATOMY OF AN INVESTIGATION

How The Indianapolis Star revealed systemic abuse in gymnastics and exposed allegations against former USA Gymnastics team doctor Larry Nassar. This workshop will examine how a team of reporters uncovered failures to report child sexual abuse and detail what individuals who work in other disciplines can learn from the reporters’ work. The investigation demonstrated the pervasiveness of child sexual abuse in society and the ways in which officials have failed to stop it.

Marisa Kwiatkowski, MBA, Investigative Reporter, USA Today

1.6 THE INTERSECTION OF DOMESTIC VIOLENCE AND HUMAN TRAFFICKING

This workshop explores the intersection of domestic violence and human trafficking, and provides a framework for understanding the relationship between the two, including consideration for different context for the violence. The experience of the victim, the behavior of the buyer, and the behavior of the trafficker are all impacted by this intersection with domestic violence and the motive of the batterer/trafficker or batterer/buyer.

Dorthy Stucky Halley, LMSW, Director of Victim Services, Kansas Attorney General’s Office
Jennifer Montgomery, MA, Director, Human Trafficking Education and Outreach, Kansas Attorney General’s Office
Sharon Sullivan, PhD, Chair, Department of Theatre, Women’s and General Studies, Washburn University
General Sessions

MECHANISMS OF SILENCE
When a story breaks or someone comes forward about pain they’ve experienced, people ask ‘why didn’t you come forward before?’ This session examines the myriad reasons people may not immediately report. It also details the systems that keep allegations quiet.

Marisa Kwiatkowski, MBA, Investigative Reporter, USA Today

CULTURAL BARRIERS TO CHANGE
In the wake of #MeToo and #TimesUp, there are days when it still feels as though we have made little progress in creating safety for vulnerable and marginalized populations. This session will explore and offer solutions to address cultural barriers to change.

CCHT Presenter

THE PENNSYLVANIA CHILD SEXUAL ABUSE INVESTIGATION OF THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH
This case study will take you behind the scenes of the five year investigation of the Roman Catholic Church in Pennsylvania. This complex investigation included the use of two statewide investigative grand juries which obtained “secret archives” of seven Roman Catholic dioceses. Further complications with the case included the systemic and systematic cover-up of child sexual abuse by church administrators. The findings of this investigation uncovered over 350 predator priests and thousands of child victims in Pennsylvania. The presenter, the lead prosecutor in this groundbreaking investigation, will discuss many aspects of the five year investigation - including the massive institutional cover-up and significant factors which enabled the abuse over decades.

Daniel Dye, JD, Esq., Assistant Chief Deputy Attorney General, Criminal Prosecutions Section, Pennsylvania Office of Attorney General

ACTION SESSIONS
These sessions create an opportunity for attendees to engage in thoughtful discussion; processing the information from the general session and exploring how this might apply to their specific role or community.

CONFERENCE OBJECTIVES

1. Recognize the complexities to addressing human trafficking including the connection to a larger social justice movement.
2. Identify and develop an understanding of organizations and agencies in Kansas and across the United States serving victims/survivors of human trafficking.
3. Develop an understanding of the unique and varying roles of multidisciplinary professionals involved in the care of victims/survivors of human trafficking.
4. Describe the continuum of care necessary to provide holistic services for victims and survivors of human trafficking.
5. Develop an understanding of prevention, identification, intervention, and multidisciplinary/multi-dimensional after-care (e.g. prosperity promoting) services currently implemented in Kansas and across the United States.
6. Explore opportunities to increase the capacity for multidisciplinary professionals to more effectively prevent and/or intervene in cases of human trafficking.
7. Explore systemic societal risk factors that create the context in which human trafficking occurs.
8. Explore and develop long-term solutions that will equate to greater efficacy in the anti-trafficking movement.
9. Develop an understanding for the importance of aftercare services for survivors of human trafficking.
10. Explore and develop more adaptive salutation that will address systemic challenges and equate to greater efficacy in the anti-trafficking movement.
