BREAKOUT SESSIONS

All Babies Deserve Healthy Brain

Wesley Jone, PhD, Clinical Psychologist, Flint Hills Counseling & Consulting Center

1-3 per 1,000 live births in this country are FAS, in addition 8-9 per 1,000 live births are FASD. Current estimates are that 10-15% of children in foster care are FAS. These children are most commonly diagnosed as ADHD by the age of seven. 97-99% of these children will not have the full facial features of FAS present. Most are not accurately identified as FAS/FASD until a thorough diagnostic evaluation is completed. This presentation will focus on Fetal Alcohol Syndrome/Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorders and provide an overview of FAS/FASD Foundations and Screening, Diagnosing and Treatment.

Be Unstoppable (through Evidence-Based Practice): Better Professionalism, Smarter Interventions, and Stronger Outcomes

Cindi Tedder, MEd, BSN, BSE, RN, Early Childhood Special Education Nurse, USD 233 Olathe Public Schools

Evidence-based practice has become the standard of care for nursing practice since the early 2000s yet many nurses find it difficult to define and recognize how it impacts daily nursing practices. School nurses are in search of how to provide the best outcomes for the communities they serve. The use of the evidence-based practice is one way to improve outcomes. This training will focus on school nurse use of evidence-based practice for the communities they serve.

Diabetes Care in School: What School Nurses Need to Know

Lesley Thomas, MEd, RN, NCSN, Assistant District Nurse, USD 261 Haysville Public Schools

This session will discuss what school nurses need to succeed in caring for students with diabetes. Participants will review case studies revolving around students with diabetes who have different levels of self-care skills and the care provided by the nurse based on those self-care skills. Laws will also be reviewed regarding students with diabetes in schools.

Guidelines for Developing a Post-Concussion Academic Return Plan

Rich Bomgardner, EdD, ATC, LAT, Program Director of Athletic Training, Wichita State University

This presentation will highlight the planning and develop of return to learn (RTL) policies, classroom management strategies, school recommendations based on national guidelines, and recent research on concussion management. School nurses provide health care coverage during the school day and oversee the concussion or traumatic brain injury (TBI) care of students along with athletic trainers when the situation involves a student-athlete. As new research changes management strategies and polices, school nurses become an influential part of the changing landscape in concussion and TBI school care. This evidence-based presentation will can help foster communication between school nurses and administrators to develop or strengthen a sound RTL plan and aid in post-concussion recovery at school. The target populations for this presentation ranges are middle to high school nurses as well as school administrators. However, any school nurse working with students who return to school after sustaining a concussion or TBI would benefit.

How to Deal with Difficult Situations and Still Build Relationships

Terri Moses, MS, Director of Safety and Environmental Services, USD 259 Wichita Public Schools

Being able to recognize signs and signals of people who are at-risk of hurting themselves or others is key in preventing school violence. This session will focus on recognizing these signs and signals, leading the person to safety using verbal and nonverbal communication techniques and focusing on positive supports to assist our young people in growing up to be healthy, caring and responsible.

Human Trafficking & Exploitation Awareness

Supporting Student Sensory Needs in School Health
Elizabeth Noble, BSN, RN, NCSN, School Nurse, USD 259 Wichita Public Schools

Students with Autism Spectrum Disorder, sensory needs and other disabilities present a special challenge for school nurses. In Fall 2021, Little Early Childhood Center in Wichita received a grant specifically for the health room to help meet the social-emotional and sensory needs of these students. In this session, participants will explore lessons learned from this grant and practical strategies for working with these students to complete required school health screenings and routine care. Ideas for health room management, communication strategies and collaboration will be discussed.

The School Based Asthma Management Program (SAMPRO™)

Ronda Hutchinson, BSN, RN, KSNO President 2020-2022, Staff Nurse, WSU 259 Wichita Public Schools

Childhood asthma is a common, chronic pediatric condition, affecting 6.3 million children. Morbidity from childhood asthma adversely affects school performance, with 1 in 2 children reporting school absences due to asthma each year. These asthma related absences influence academic achievement, leading to decreased levels of reading proficiency and increased risk of learning disabilities. Improving health and school-related outcomes for children with asthma requires the use of school-based partnerships that focus on integrated care coordination amongst families, clinicians and school nurses.
