

Ferd Hoefner is a Washington, D.C.-based consultant working on contract for multiple organizations with interests in federal farm, food, and environmental policy. For 34 years prior to 2021, Ferd worked for the National Sustainable Agriculture Coalition (NSAC), including 30 years as its policy director and lead Washington representative, and another 4 years as senior strategic advisor. Ferd is a veteran of nine federal farm bill campaigns over a 43-year span, including five as NSAC's policy director, two as a policy advocate for the Interreligious Taskforce on US Food Policy, and one as an intern for a senior member of the House Agriculture Committee. He has also worked extensively on budget, appropriations, tax reform, food safety, and environmental legislation.